Y. P. S. S. TO MEET

Young Club Proving Resourceful in an Educational Way.

The Young People's Social society, which is only a few weeks old, is forging right along and is proving resourceful in an educational way as well as social to the young people. They are only using the present name temporarily until another develops. The society will meet Friday evening in the club room over the Unitarian church on Houston street. At this time a fifteen-minute talk will be given by G. W. Chamlee, Jr., on "Electrical Engineering." Recently an adress was given by a professional on chemistry, another on astronomy; others have been given on travel, and a professional reader was the honoree of a reception. Therefore, they are cultivating a knowledge of science and literature as well as encouraging speaking in meeting by the members.

These things are supplemented by music, card playing, refreshments and a general social time. The club is open for suggestions as to a suitable home.

Friday evening rook and 800 will be played after the business session and fifteen-minute falk, and a prize will be given for the highest score.
